YOUR IMMIGRATION SOLUTION

ATTY. ROBERT REEVES & JEREMIAH JOHNSON

The gift of hope this Christmas

der and managed to find work in our country. It is not "amnesty" to require these individuals to earn the privilege of citizenship, as have the millions of immigrants who came before them. We need comprehensive reform, and we need it this year." Statements like these from the new administration certainly are a gift of hope this holiday season.

Reeves & Associates is also committed to pursuing real immigration solutions; a gift of hope to all immigrants and their families. Throughout the year, Reeves & Associates has successfully helped countless immigrants change their status to lawful permanent residents, become United States citizens and be reunited with their families and loved ones. Moreover, Reeves & Associates' attorneys have consistently been successful in some of the nation's more complex immigration cases. For example, Reeves & Associates' attorneys obtained lawful permanent resident status for the "child" of a fiancée, despite her being over 21 years old; won countless number of waivers in immigration court and subsequently obtained United States citizenship for immigrants who originally entered the United States through fraud; and secured the release from immigration detention of a wrongfully detained individuals. In short, Reeves & Associates' gift of hope extends to even the most difficult cases.

Finally, last year saw Reeves & Associates emerge as a leader in litigating the United States Citizenship and Immigration Service's ("USCIS") misapplication of the Child Status Protection Act ("CSPA"). This litigation provides hope for thousands of families who have suffered from wrongful separation from their families. Specifically, Reeves & Associates has filed a class action lawsuit to compel the USCIS to recognize the automatic conversion and retention of the original priority date of the original visa petition under Section 203(h)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. ("INA"). Although that case is currently pending before a federal judge, Reeves & Associates has been granted special appearance before the Board of Immigration Appeals ("BIA") to submit briefs on two pending cases that have been certified by the immigration service to the BIA. Over the past year, Reeves & Associates has been successful on a number of CSPA cases, including obtaining the original priority date on a number of petitions under INA § 203(h)(3).

Christmas is a time of giving. Hopefully you are with your family as you buy gifts, listen to Christmas music, decorate your Christmas tree and prepare for the Christmas dinner. We all know that the most important part of Christmas is being with your families—and we hope you are able to celebrate with yours. Our firm is committed to family reunification, and we will not give up hope, even with the most difficult cases.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!
